OUESTIONS FOR ALL EUROPE

RUSSIA STANDS FOR REVISION OF AUSTRIA'S ACTION.

Can't Be Undone, but She and Bulgaria Must Submit to the Powers and Conpensate Turkey and Servia-No Seifish Aims-Isvolsky's Position Defined.

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN. LONDON, Oct. 15 -- The Times gives questions raised are European questions, not questions simply between Austria and Bulgaria on the one hand and Turkey on the other.

They must be discussed and settled by undo what has been done Austria and Rulgaria must submit their action to the judgment of Europe. It is therefore necessary that a European conference Previsional Government Set Up Pending he summoned

The objects of such a conference should be to provide compensation in the first place for Turkey, and in the second place for Servia and Montenegro. essential condition that the compensations to the two latter pations should not be at Turkey's expense. Russia on this point is in complete accord with Great Britain and France.

Regarding Russia's reported demand for compensation for herself by obtaining a revision of the agreements relating to the Dardanelles, Russia believes that revision is necessary for her interests, but she does not wish to make this part of the programme of the conference or to force it upon Turkey. In the Russian view, itcan only be effected with the consent and good will of Turkey and as the result of future negotiations, which, it is hoped, Great Britain will facilitate.

It is held that by the friendly cooperation of all the interested parties an arrangement can be reached which will give Russia all she requires without menacing the interests of Turkey, Great Britain or any other Power and which by removing a long standing Russian grievance will contribute to the consolidation of the Anglo-Russian agreement and the estabsia and Turkey.

LONDON, Oct 14 .- Although the complete solidarity of Great Britain, Russia and France is now assured, negotiations on the terms of the prospective international congres s are hanging fire, and it is understood that M. Isvolsky, the Russian Foreign Minister, who intended leaving England to-morrow, will prolong his stav.

Efforts are now being made to settle various points by separate private agreements between the nations immediately interested, and if this can be effected the congress, when it is held, will not be a conference in the originally intended sense, but a meeting of the Powers for the ratification of these previously made com-

At present things are moving slowly It is stated unofficially that one of the difficulties is M. Isvolsky's insistence that the Treaty of London of 1871, affecting the Dardanelles question, be considered concurrently with the Berlin treaty. Sir Edward Grey, the British Foreign Secretary, is reported to hold an unvielding attitude on this point.

Meanwhile, conflicting reports of Bulgaria's aims keep anxiety alive regarding the possibility of the new kingdom taking the bit in its teeth. One despatch from Sofia represents the position there as extremely critical, the Government being incensed by the idea that the Powers may possibly impose upon Bulgaria the payment of a monetary compensation to

Ballot and Colin have come to be regarded here as public idols among followers of the turf. Colin has never been defeated. As a two-year-old he won $138,000 in stakes and purses and was regarded as the greatest horse of his age ever seen on an American racetrack. He began this year's campaign by winning the Withers Stakes in a gallop from Fair Play, King James, Dorante and other three-year-olds. Shortly afterward it was reported that he had broken down after a fast workout at the Bay, and the turf world went into deep mourning. But it turned out that the report was a false alarm, for Colin started again in the Relmont Stakes, beating Fair Play a head in a sensational race run in the mud and rain. A few weeks later Colin and Celt both went wrong and neither has been to the post since. If Colin goes to the stud in England the American thoroughbred industry will be deprived for a time of a stallion in whose veins flowed the blood of the great Domino, the sire of Commando. But it is believed that ultimately Mr. Keene will bring Colin back to Castleton

The Oceanic was sent going full speed ahead and cleared the Frenchman, which came close enough to carry away the White Star liner's long log line trailing over from the taffrail. The impression of some of the passengers was that the ships came within a few yards of each other, and there was a genuine scare. In reality, according to Capt. DALLAS, S. D., Oct. 14.—This little city vas saved from prairie fire destruction to-day by the resourcefulness and persistence of the merchants, gamblers, aborers and homeseekers 'who rose to the emergency.

Dallas is the principal registry point or the opening of the second instalment f Rosebud lands.

To-day at noon in every store, hotel, restaurant, bank (faro or otherwise), tent, refined vaudeville exhibition and eal estate office the word went that there was "a hell of a fire coming from the tween the couple but also because the southwest."

The town turned out with one hose vagon, one chemical engine and unlimted nerve.

The fire line front was four miles long and the destruction of the city seemed inevitable.

Ex-Gov. Jackson, his sons Ernest, Frank and Graydon and Chief of Police Ray Garner took charge of the fight. Auxiliary Police Chief McSherry recommended by Burns of San Francisco, the detective the worked up the Schmitz graft cases, went through town, sending all able bodied men to the fire line with assurances that their property would be protected. He also collected those eminent New York visitors, Jew Jake and Billy the Owl, and tactfully informed them and needed in Omaha. They went sadly but speedily.

Hudson-Fulton Committee. The Hudson-Fulton Celebration Comission accepted yesterday the plans of its naval parade committee for the reconstruction of the Clermont, Robert Fulton's first successful steamboat on the Hudson. The committee's report was resented by Rear Admiral Coghlan.

Admiral Coghlan said that the comnittee had had greater difficulty in deermining the appearance of the Clermont, which was built in 1807, than in figuring out how Hendrick Hudson's falf Moon looked when it entered the Hudson in 1809. There are no contemporary drawings of either ship, but in Just's Journal of Hudson's voyage are many references to the Half Moon's masting, rigging, &c., while authentic decriptions of Fulton's little boat almost entirely are lacking

He said that he way waiting outside the Hotel Netherland for passengers when a man and woman came out of the hotel and asked him to drive them to 308 East Seventy-second street. Leavitt was a little surprised when he got the address, but suspected nothing and drove over there.

When the cab got to a dark stretch of Seventy-second street beyond Second avenue a dozen men who had apparently been waiting for the cab jumped into the street and each man buried a stone at the two men in the front sest.

Leavitt was struck on the side of the head by one of the first bricks thrown and he toppled off his seat into the street. The special policeman, who had no revolver because his permit had not yet been issued, ran after the men in spite of being struck on the body by several of the bricks. When he saw that he couldn't stop the men from jumping on the elevated train he went back Leavitt's assistance.

By the time he got there Policeman Shaw of the East Sixty-seventh strest station had arrived and was doing what he could. A young woman named Hentoh of 1406 Park avenue, who happened GIVES AWAY A MILLS BUILDING to be passing, bound up Leavitt's wound as well as she could and waited there until Dr. McBaine arrived from the Presbyterian Hospital in an ambulance. The hospital servants found Leavitt's condition so serious that they sent for his wife and child at Glendale, L. I. The man and woman who were in the taxicab had vanished before Policen Shaw got there. Dr. H. Rosenstein lives at 308 East Seventy-second street. His wife said last night that he was out calling on patients and that no one had ordered a taxicab for that house. The police later found Jacob Kreisler of 309 East Seventy-second street, who said he saw the men attack the cab. Some about $2,500,000 and its rehabilitation of them had bottles, he said. Kreislei declared that he saw the man and wor jump out of the cab and go up to the elevated station with the men. The striking drivers and their sympathizers continued to make things uncomfortable for the strike break various parts of town all day yesterday In addition to the force of police nimself nominated by petition to run tailed by Commissioner Bingham to protect the leading hotels from stones acting Captain Murphy of the Tenderloin station assigned his entire staff of plain clothes men to the same job, so that some of the hotels had four policemen on guard. Charles Reid, a strike breaker, had an exciting day. Shortly after noon he stopped his car at Seventy-second street. and Broadway to inspect the machinery and while he was underneath it a crowd gathered and somebody dropped a lighted match in the bonnet of the car. He shut off the gasolene at once and prevented the tank from taking fire. The police couldn't find the match thrower.

At 9:30 o'clock Reid, with the same detectives aboard, was going through Forty-fourth street near Broadway his car was held up by a crowd and some-body yelled "scab." One of the detectives grabbed the man that he thought did the yelling, but when he was arraigne in the West Side court Reid said the prisoner was the wrong man, so he was released

One of the troublesome big red touring cars passed a standing taxicab by the Hotel St. Andrew at Seventystreet and Broadway last night and the occupants yelled "scab" and things. The taxicab piloted by Charles Reid and containing three real policemen gave chase and at Broadway and Sixtysecond street forced the touring car to the curb and stopped it.

The policemen arrested three men who were in the touring car, John Farrell of 449 West Fiftleth street, John Casselman of 135 West Fifty-second street and James O'Connor of 265 West Sixty-fourth street. They were locked up in the West Sixty-eighth street police station on a charge of using indecent language. said that they had yelled "snob," not "scab."

A new way was found yesterday to anney a strike breaking driver. John F O'Neil of 83c Eighth avenue, recording secretary of the Hackmen and Chauffeurs Union, got in a taxicab at the Hotel Plaza yesterday afternoon and ordered the chauffeur to drive to the East Fifty-first street police station. Arrived at the police WILL RELEASE TSCHAIKOVSKY, station O'Neil refused to pay his fare and when the chauffeur went in to have him arrested demanded that the chauffeur; Joseph Sweeney, show a cabman's license ip addition to his chauffeur's license. This Sweeney did not have, but said he had applied for one. They didn't arrest Sweeney, but they did arrest O'Neil for not paying his fare and he was fined $5 in the night court Then Sweeney had him arrested again, this time for impersonating an officer, aileging that O'Neil had told him hawasn policeman. On this charge O'Neil was peroled in the custody of Lawyer Kaufe
